Is Your Account Appreciated or Tolerated?

She Was Indignant

It Was Evident She Thought the Credit Man Didn't Know Who She Was, But He Did—

It happens frequently; the names and dates and places vary, but the situation is usually identical. The following incident took place just the other day:

A certain prominent woman walked into the credit department of a local store. She was indignant. Someone in that credit department had dunned her for an overdue bill. True, the bill was four months past due, but—she was Mrs. So-and-so of the socially prominent So-and-so's. She was being dunned by a mere credit man.

Now the credit man was much impressed. He was of the old school, but he had also taken the post-graduate course. He was fair and impartial, the strict arbiter of his firm's credit accommodations.

What he told the lady made her more indignant at first. But she finally saw the light—and paid the bill.

In these times, credit men in Port Arthur, representing leading firms and professional men, look on all customers with the same eye. Mrs. So-and-so must pay her bills on schedule time or be told in so many words that she must. Let her permit it to drag for months and her credit will cease as quickly as the credit of any other offender.

Prominence in social or political circles does not make one's credit one whit better or worse than that of another customer who may not desire to be or happen to be "prominent."

None need think that his business is so valuable to the members of this association that they will be glad to carry them indefinitely. Slow pay is not good business; none of our members want such business and none will have it.

These are plain words. Possibly we are putting the proposition too bluntly, but the fact remains that "Slow Pay" will find his credit rather limited, unless he begins now to pay promptly and in full.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

600,000 ITALIANS WANT TO ENTER UNITED STATES

There are six hundred thousand Italians waiting to enter the United States, according to Immigration Commissioner Henry H. Curran of the port of New York. The yearly quota allocation for Italy is forty-two thousand. Commissioner Curran has recommended that guards be placed in charge of all Canadian immigrant convoys passing through American ports so that the steamship or railroad companies transporting the immigrants be compelled to furnish certificates from the Canadian government showing that their charges reached their destination.

Hundreds of Italian immigrants are from the agricultural sections of Italy and the recent comers declared their intention of working on Canadian farms. Canadian government agents who have investigated report that there is no present demand for Italian farm labor. Hence the drastic measures recommended by Commissioner Curran.

Southern negroes continue to flock northward. They leave the south on every train. Here in Texas the Mexican is taking the place of the negro on the farm and on the ranch, and yet more than fifty thousand Mexicans have been shipped from Texas to northern states this year. Where the wage is high, the worker goes. He would be a fool if he didn't.

COUZENS VS. FORD

Senator James Couzens of Michigan was a bit peeved when Henry Ford asserted that the senator did not know what he was talking about when he said that the people demanded light wines and beer. Senator Couzens is a five per cent beer advocate.

Henry Ford sees no reason why the army and the navy should not be utilized by prohibition enforcement officials to clear the country of illicit rum makers and brazen rum runners. Senator Couzens is a former partner of the Michigan millionaire and the senator's latest utterance is that Ford does not announce his candidacy for the presidency because he is afraid it will be as great a fiasco as his peace ship.

Senator Couzens should not rail at his old partner. He had a few hundred dollars when Henry took him in. He had thirty-three million dollars after Henry bought him out. Why should old partners quarrel over the issue of beer or no beer? Why a smoke screen when there are important issues before the American electorate which affects the pockets of the American people.

Federal Judges are holding police courts everywhere the country over. This is what prohibition did for the federal judiciary. National guards and state rangers are made use of to run down and capture moonshiners and moonshine sellers. Why not regular soldiers and the blue jackets? They are all the paid servants of the American people.

CROWDING THE PENS

Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty reports that urgent necessity for additional housing space in federal penal institutions has been brought about by the rapid increase in the number of federal prisoners. Uncle Sam has 7,065 stripped wards. To maintain these convicts in three of the penal institutions last year American tax payers handed over to the government $1,500,000. Another pressing problem is that of providing useful employment for the convicts. Hundreds are idle. There is no work for them to do. Oil crooks and bootleggers and now and then a gentleman banker find their way to these institutions. Sellers of narcotics are well represented. Uncle Sam is for law enforcement. His court and his agents are for law enforcement. Whenever Uncle Sam throws the dragnet there is no escape.

TIP O' THE TONGUE

HEALTHY children should be the product of love. I do not believe in the cold, calculating union where a girl picks out a mate only on the basis of his financial and other qualifications. After all, sex attraction is one of the greatest things in the world and all marriages should hold sex attraction.—Mrs. Margaret Sanger, president American Birth Control League.

GIRLS and boys develop when they play and not when they study. A district between 23rd street and 56th street and Third avenue and Ninth avenue, in New York City, determines the morals of the world. Here all the new art movements, all the impetus to entertainment is given. But America isn't making real art worth while to its artists, and they therefore are pot-boiling. It's either that or starve. Now if we were in earnest we would go to the problems involved in the upbringing and development of our children in the right way. And that right way is the establishment of soul factories, where the artist will be developed and then provided for until he can make a decent living out of his art.—Mrs. David A. Campbell, president American Lovers of Music.

A STEP greatly needed in advertising art work is the use of color according to principles evolved in several experiments to determine the effects of color on the sexes and on different ages and degrees of civilization. These color charts indicated that, generally speaking, men were affected by grays and browns, women by blue and children and savages by red. Blue is the best color for an appeal to both men and women.—W. N. Morris, former vice president Advertising Clubs of the nation.

TREND OF AUTO PRICE DOWNWARD, CLAIM

American manufacturers produced or will have produced by the end of the year 3,500,000 cars and trucks. Now a trade journal says a total output of 3,000,000 cars and trucks during the year 1924 is forecast.

This will be about twenty-five per cent below the 1923 output and more than twenty-five per cent below the productive capacity of the auto industry. It will be five times the volume of the peak year before the war.

The same authority makes the prediction that the present trend of prices in the auto field is unmistakably downward and next year is likely to be a period of intense competition in prices.

Petroleum forecasters go up in their own smoke. Auto industry forecasters keep close to the shore. They have basic lines to go on.

Next year will be presidential campaign year and there will be more gas exhausted or consumed than the editor of any trade journal could intelligently reduce to quantity or cost.

It is going to be an interesting year in Texas and the nation and all hoobloes, seen and unseen, will be pulling their little strings.

DRUNKS

Bruce simply had to go when the fast motor car began coming into widespread use. The auto is dangerous enough without a crazed and in different runs round at the wheel. The action of the vital organs, in these two cavities, is interfered with. It kept up more or less all day, the loss in blood circulation will result in harm that can hardly be measured.

CORRECT POSTURE

Correct posture, in sitting, rising, standing, walking, stooping or lying, is of great importance to health.

When your spine is bent and the body is "slumped" or in a stooping position, both the chest and the abdominal cavity are narrowed and restricted. The action of the vital organs, in these two cavities, is interfered with. It is kept up more or less all day, the loss in blood circulation will result in harm that can hardly be measured.

In climbing stairs hold the trunk erect. Use your feet and legs to lift you upstairs and not have your body bending over and swaying from side to side. The same thing is true about posture in sitting or during sleep. An erect posture, during study or office work, will conserve your nerve force to a marked extent.

Sleep with your trunk straight and legs extended. A bent trunk or spine during six or seven hours of sleep will cause a decided loss in nerve force and interfere with proper circulation. It will cause uneasiness and restless sleep and the waking hours may mean a severe headache or loss of appetite for a nourishing breakfast.

One of the most common forms of lack of proper posture is the bent or drooping shoulders, both in youth and adults. In children, this may be aided by having the weight of the clothing properly adjusted.

In adults, as a result of bad posture, the lower back muscles become strained. The effort to relieve this strain on the sacroiliac joints, causes back and drooping shoulders. The strain on these same joints, through improper posture, causes backache in many cases.

The strain is not alone confined to the back, but is also felt in the legs. Many cases of sciatica, sciatica and rheumatism, may be traced to improper posture.

THIS LITTLE OLD WORLD

CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Styles in chorus girls this fall run to youth and pinches.

To Chen, able writer, finds there are 15,000 Chinese merchants in the Philippines, and they control four-fifths of the commerce over there. They really own the Philippines. We just think we do.

We believe this is one reason for the big cities. People of our generation have a hermit streak. They want privacy without constant solitude. In old times, folks visited back and forth to exchange gossip rather than because they craved companionship. The newspaper has taken the place of the old-time gossiping bee.

Some Americans are very proud we own the Philippines. They point out that we have big trade advantages and possibilities in these islands.

Not bulkiness. But a fitness of wills different from years ago. Whether that ideal prevails elsewhere is a matter for research, but it is accepted by a leading publisher here.

Valentino has only 150 suits of clothes," says Rudolph Valentino sadly. "You may think that a large number, but clothes to me are just like a pick and shovel to a laborer—they are my tools."

Socrates would listen to that. Socrates also would be keenly interested in the hit of cable news describing Valentino in his boudoir. Several French journalists interviewing him on international relations. The real joke about this is that some of the politicians who actually shape "international relations" are half as keen and wise as the sheik.

Newspapers are the places where people do not grow old. Those persons of 50, 60 or 70 years do not resign themselves to do without the pastimes of youth. Gray hairs are as likely to be found in a ballroom as at the theater at party past midnight as well as sitting beside the fire in home. It would be scandalous in a village home.

When persons may walk three blocks across the Loop or run just as quickly as they could ride a taxi through the congested traffic, why won't they walk? Perhaps walking is becoming a lost art. Certain it is that the business man rides the three blocks, and his wife on a shopping trip takes a cab for the few blocks between stores.

The taxicab business reflects the tendency by the troupe companies to concentrate in keeping their drivers down. The stage and reader's profitability, and they want to hang around and get lots of it. Walking would at least save the cab companies that difficulty.

Listen to motorists, and one may believe half the suburban towns around Chicago are paving their streets by extortions fines. The favorite country town setting for such stories is Justice Park. The name, according to drivers, should not refer to the quality of penalties exacted but to the justice of the peace, whose authority rests heavy upon innocent and guilty alike.

Buying Play Costumes.
It was agreed Potty Mount should choose the material for the costumes she and the neighbor children were going to wear in the Thanksgiving play. As her father drove her to town behind the brown bays, she checked off the items of her shopping list on the fingers inside her muff.

"Twenty yards of cambric, a package of needles, two boxes of beads and four spools of thread." Before long she was saying crazily, "Twenty packages of needles, a yard of cambric, four boxes of thread and a spool of beads."

But in the store she got her tongue straightened out enough to buy the right things. She was in such a hurry to get home and begin cutting that she wouldn't even let her father stop at the corner candy shop to buy her ice cream soda.

Polly's blue-green coat and hat set off beautifully her coppery red hair. The muff and fur are brown and so are her shoes, hose and plaid skirt.

LETTER FROM MARGARET GRIM
SHAW TO MRS. BLANCH
REINHARD SUMMERS

Received your wire asking about my health this morning, dear Dick. I urge not written your business your last letter rather mystified me. I can't understand why you should have written from anything that I have written. I try to do not seem to be able to get your point of view.

Neither can I understand why it was impossible for you to tell Miss Perier that you were working so hard to be able to bring me out there. It is because you, too, as well as she, were unconsciously working "to forget."

It is perfectly natural that I am not able to get into the "atmosphere" because I am not really like you. You are too conventional. Your life is bounded by too many rules to see any merit in these people who work like demons when they do work and play and leave away the hours when they are not working in a way that I have never known reasonable grown people to do before."

I have always thought, dear Dick, that when a woman loved a man well enough to marry him it was a part of the expression of that love to be content in following him wherever he should go. I did not think it would be necessary for me to marry the whole of the moving picture colony when I married you, although your last letter seems to intimate as much. Of course these people interest me greatly. They interest me as any other part of your work would interest me, but loving you, dear Dick, must I love them also?

No dear boy, I am afraid that it isn't my temperament and my likes and dislikes that you are considering, much of your own.

Please don't say that I am jealous in any way. I don't believe in jealousy, as you know. I consider it an inferiority complex. But I am sure of one thing, Dick, and that is that your ideas have changed materially since you left me. I am not jumping at conclusions, but I am going to wait awhile to let you find yourself before I come to you.

Not because as you say you think

The members voted to meet every Monday afternoon after school next week's meeting to be held at the home of Margaret Capps on Seventh street. An informal afternoon of needlework and games was enjoyed, following which the hostess offered delicious refreshments.

Those enjoying the occasion were Mae Pritchard, Margaret Capps, Dorothy Morris, Margaret Raup, Elizabeth Latimer, Nell Barron, Inez Turner, and Madge Summers.

MRS. GEORGE C. BOREN HAS returned to her home in Memphis, Tenn., after a pleasant visit of a few days with Mrs. H. G. Bell of 3525 Sixth street.

The W. B. A. OF THE MACCAWS will meet in regular session tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the hall in Hartford building.

The members of the drill team are requested to meet at 1:30 o'clock for rehearsal. The members of this team are practicing regularly to compete with the various drill teams of the state in the Southeast Texas Convention, which convenes in Beaumont in the part of the evening.

Announcement is also made that the Progressive Club of the W. B. A. of the Macabees will meet on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. F. A. Dryer, 2412 Sixth street.

Every member of the W. B. A. of the Macabees is eligible to join this club and all are urged to attend Friday's meeting.

(as in what you call it in Hollywood, isn't it?) of the moving picture colony, I have never in all my life as you know met any artistes belonging to that set which we call Bohemian. Consequently, however much I try I do not seem to be able to get your point of view.

Neither can I understand why it was impossible for you to tell Miss Perier that you were working so hard to be able to bring me out there. It is because you, too, as well as she, were unconsciously working "to forget."

I don't believe you really know me, Dick, and I have come to the conclusion that I do not know you at all. Before you left for Hollywood, you told me that I was almost too broad in my ideas because I insisted that there should be only one standard for both the sexes, and now you say, "You are too conventional. Your life is bounded by too many rules to see any merit in these people who work like demons when they do work and play and leave away the hours when they are not working in a way that I have never known reasonable grown people to do before."

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Marion H. Shaw did not call Matroness Patrician, Priscilla, of Patchogue, a "hick cop," but she will not do it again.

Her attorney gave this version of a Scotch verdict when he admitted the young woman was guilty, but said she could prove she did not enter the room of contempt. He said:

"We admit she lost her head in the excitement of being handed a retort for speeding, but we can prove that she did not call him a silly no and a hick cop. Nevertheless we will plead guilty."

Mamos, Poulis, On Edge for Big Time Grappling Bill Tonight

George Actor Wires Challenge to Meet Victor of Mat Mill

Springfield Artist Unbeaten; Poulis Star Grappler of Louisiana, Favorite Boy of Houston Area; Doors Swing Open at 7:30.

By BILL ARCHER.

HUNDREDS of fans are expected to swarm the arena at Plaza Nat tonight when Harry Mamos of Springfield, Mass., and Mike Poulis of Alexandria, La., tangle up in their first encounter, and which also will be the first light-heavyweight classic of the season in Port Arthur. The doors swing open at 7:30 o'clock, with several snappy prelims scheduled, and with Promoter Will Fort promising to send the big boys on for the main show not later than 8:15 sharp.

It is the return of the masters of the wrestling game to Port Arthur tonight. Heavy men with heavy muscles; heavy men with heaving chests; heavy men with writhing masses of strength will clash on the padded square this evening in a classic which will probably go down in the minds of those who witness it as a battle well worth twice the money.

In the prelims, Promoter Fort has secured LeRoy Meyers, Charles Hall and two other scrappy fellows, one from Beaumont, one from Houston, who will probably start the bill off. The prelims will be made snappy by being given a time-limit, and may draw to a close between 7:30 and 8:15.

The main bout will get under way with a bang when the busky undefeated Springfield grappler takes his corner against the equally as-tempered scrapper from Louisiana. Both men are in the pink of condition, and the chances are tonight that the victory will be a decisive one.

A message received here this morning from George Actor, well-known grappler who got his start in the Port Arthur ring, will probably be read at the side-table tonight. It challenges the winner.

Actor is expected to arrive in Port Arthur not later than November 20, and will be in condition upon arrival to go on with "any of the boys down this way," in view of his continued engagements around Enid and Oklahoma City during the present month.

Poulis and Mamos are from the Big Time shows. They both are accustomed to playing to Big Time crowds. People who miss the match will miss a Big Time clash—the first classic staged here since the visit of Pink Gardner last season, and Promoter Fort is bringing him back, along with the champion, Strangler Ed Lewis, and other noted artists of the game.

The seats go off tonight at "a dollar a throw anywhere in the house." Ladies will be admitted free with escorts.

Yep! Chick Had Lotta Nerve For This Bout

By NEA Service. Golfers will appreciate this story. With his fortunes wiped out by the brain market, his mind naturally troubled, and his opponent for the title Jesse Sweetser at Cleveland, Chick Evans came "wailing through" and capped the title.

When Sweetser and Chick clashed, the morning round was replete with brilliant golf; tension tightened in the afternoon, with first one leading, then the other. Finally Chick took the lead at the 16th by plucking out of the rough for a birdie three. Sweetser caught him at the home hole and squared the match. The first extra hole was halved, the end came on the next green.

Evans was trashed with his second, and Sweetser, with the match all but in his palms, overshot the green. Both were out in three. Jesse made a shot putt, and Evans won the hole and the match.

No wonder he smiled as he grasped Sweetser's hands.

West Virginia Varsity Squad May Annex Another Grid Room

Prospects Good as Biggest Tussle of Season Draws Near

Meet Washington-Jefferson, Bitter Rivals, Turkey Day; Met But One Worthy Foe During Year; Line, Backfield, Stronger Now.

By BILLY EVANS

UNIVERSITY OF WEST VIRGINIA, unbeaten on the gridiron in 1922, has every prospect of going through another season with a clean record.

The one big game of the year on the West Virginia schedule remains to be played with Washington and Jefferson on Thanksgiving day. The dope strongly favors West Virginia to win.

West Virginia and Washington and Jefferson are bitter rivals. If either team lost every game on the schedule, only to emerge the victor in the Turkey Day battle, all would be forgotten. The rivalry between Princeton, Harvard, and Yale has nothing on the West Virginia and W. J. situation.

In only four games so far this season has West Virginia met a worthy foe. In the game with Penn State the best West Virginia could get was a 13 to 12, a couple of costly fumbles playing havoc with their hopes of victory. Since Penn State beat the Navy 21 to 3, it is no easy matter to get a line of the caliber of West Virginia this year.

The dope doesn't always run true to form on the gridiron, but the following figures make West Virginia a strong favorite over Washington and Jefferson and point to another undefeated year. Lafayette held W. J. to a 6 to 6 tie. Rutgers played Uniforte to a draw decision, 6 to 6. West Virginia, on the other hand, overwhelmed Rutgers, 27 to 7.

Most of the success of West Virginia, coached by "Fat" Spears, former Dartmouth star, centers in his veteran backfield. In Guy Ekberg, Nick Nardacci and Jack Simon, Spears has three star backs, well drilled in his style of play. At end Fred Graham has also played a leading role in practically every game.

Also supported by a strong line, West Virginia's crack backfield has had havoc with the opposition. Spears has a varied style of attack in a backfield that can hit the line, throw passes and skirt the ends. Running many of his plays from a formation, he is enabled to keep the opposition in the air.

Last year West Virginia was one of the eastern colleges selected to meet a team from West Virginia. Played Gouraud, coached by Charles Dugay, former Notre Dame star, and held the prestige of the east by winning 21 to 13 in a very sensational game.

The West Virginia team of 1922 looks like it's set or, or aggregation, than that of last year and if it does possess of Washington and Jefferson, as the dope says, it should. Spears' team may be accorded a high rating at the close of the season.

THE QUESTION

The football coach is not satisfied with the way the player calling the signals is selecting his plays. At a certain critical stage of the game, during certain plays to be tried he sends in another player to do the calling of signals. The new player sent into the game does not substitute for the player who has been calling signals, as the coach desires this player to continue in the game, even though the right to call the signals is to be vested in another player. Is it possible for the player sent into the game by the coach to immediately take up the work of calling the signals after reporting to the proper official?

It so happens that he is sent into the game on the fourth down and the question as to what course to pursue is debatable.

THE ANSWER

A player may be substituted for another at any time. He must immediately report to the referee or umpire. When a player is substituted he must not communicate in any way with any of the players on the field until after the ball has been put into play. When a player is sent into the game to give signals and the man who has been giving them is not removed, the substituted player cannot give the signals until one play has been completed after he has reported to the official. The signals for the play must be given by the player who was the original selection for that play and who still continues in the game. The idea of this is to prevent a coach from sending a new player in to give the signals for a certain play at a critical stage of the game. The play must elapse before such a player can take up his duties as the giver of signals.

As To Penalties

Failure of a substitute to report to the proper official carries with it the penalty of a loss of five yards.

A player withdrawn from the game during the second half may not return to the game. If a player illegally returns and it is discovered the player shall be suspended from the game and his team loses half the distance to the goal from the spot of the down where the illegal substitution was made.

If a player illegally substituted takes part in a number of plays before the error is discovered, the penalty shall be enforced from the spot where it was discovered.

MINNESOTA 11 BEST SINCE '16

Only Three Great Crews in Past 20 Years

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 13.—"The best team since 1916." That's what the student body at the University of Minnesota is predicting for its football aggregation this season.

In the past 20 years Minnesota has sponsored three really great teams. One of these was the 1916 eleven which tied for Western Conference losses with Michigan.

The 1916 eleven was all above average beaten by Michigan, 6 to 0. On that team were such stars as Johnny McGovern, Lyle Johnson and others.

Then there was the 1916 outfit with that forward passing combination of Wenzel and Basry standing out as the largest asset. That season Minnesota put on the field one of the strongest eleven in the entire country.

This fall followers of Minnesota see a return to the winning ways of yesterday.

Chapter 32
What Happened to the Dead

The first people must have been careless of what they did with the bodies of comrades who died. They doubtless threw them into the rivers and lakes, or else tossed them into the bushes. The idea was to get rid of those who could no longer walk or talk.

Then people became more thoughtful of dead persons. Affection found its way into the breasts of savage men, and they became sorry when a friend or relative died. They buried the bodies instead of tossing them to one side.

It was widely believed that the dead persons would wake up at a later time. In order to prepare for this awakening Stone Age people began to bury things with dead persons. These things were tools, weapons, ornaments, sometimes even food. The idea was to provide for the needs of the person when he awoke.

Let us take a few examples of such burials.

In a cave near Montferrand, France, was found the skeleton of a man only 5 feet 3 inches tall. The persons who buried him stretched out his limbs so that he lay at full length. They placed around his neck a circle of pretty shells, and by his side they laid a large number of fine tools and weapons.

Hundreds of other Stone Age skeletons buried in much the same way have been found.
